

Miami's Haber Law announced Thursday that it had promoted several of its attorneys and added a new partner to its litigation practice group from Kasowitz LLP.

Giselle Gonzalez Manseur is the firm's newest addition. Attorneys Jonathan Goldstein, Rebecca Newman Casamayor and Kim Haber all received new roles within the firm.

"We are attracting great talented attorneys, and we are expanding our footprint and will continue to be a force in the legal profession in South Florida as we continue to expand," David Haber said in a statement to Law360 Pulse on Thursday.

Manseur is a Miami native with nearly 20 years of experience in commercial litigation. She handles contract disputes and business torts, real estate litigation and product liability matters. Her clients have included small-business owners, publicly traded companies, developers and financial institutions.

"Giselle is an outstanding addition to our business litigation practice group," founding partner David Haber said in a statement. "She brings the trial experience our clients need, and her nearly two decades at a national law firm reflect the sophistication and judgment required to handle complex legal matters."

She is a graduate of the University of Florida Levin College of Law and holds a bachelor's degree in economics from the same university, according to her LinkedIn profile.

Goldstein, an equity partner and former co-chair of the firm's condominium and homeowners' association practice group, earned a spot on Haber Law's executive committee. He is certified by the Florida Bar Association in condominium and planned development law.

"Jonathan brings strong judgment and insight, and his commitment to Haber Law's continued growth will be a valuable asset to both the executive committee and the firm," Haber said.

Kim Haber has more than 25 years of experience in real estate business development and account service. She will now take over the role of director of recruitment.

She will continue leading the firm's marketing and business development efforts as well, where she supports individual attorneys, practice groups and industry sector teams.

"Simply put, Kim is a superstar. She is deeply committed to the firm's success, and we are delighted she has taken on these additional responsibilities. Her work in the community through business development puts her in contact with many people, making recruitment a natural extension of her role," David Haber said.

Casamayor is also an equity partner and experienced condominium and HOA attorney. She became chair of the condominium and HOA practice group for a second time.

She has extensive experience advising condominium and homeowners' associations on governance, legal compliance and disputes with owners, vendors and third parties.

"Rebecca is one of the most organized and efficient lawyers I have ever worked with, and her leadership of the condominium and HOA practice group is a tremendous benefit to the firm and its attorneys," David Haber said. "As a former co-chair of the group, she brings valuable experience to this important role, and we are thrilled to have her step back into it."
